

To whom it may concern,

Please do not allow any changes in the current NJ Do Not Call Laws. As consumers we are bombarded with UNWANTED advertisements everywhere. Our homes are a place in which we should be allowed privacy and choice as to who and what gets in. Telemarketers are an absolute invasion of that privacy. How many people have you ever spoken to that are glad to receive an unsolicited phone call? And how many people have you heard of that actually thought the phone call sold something that was needed? Probably not many.

Information regarding what the telemarketers would like to sell can be found everywhere. The internet is a great way to locate information regarding products and services. My guess is that if a consumer was interested in the products or services being offered by telemarketers, the consumer would have contacted the company on his own, making the phone call useless.

Also, the fear of identity theft makes these calls useless. Many people will no longer give personal information over the phone to callers with whom they are unfamiliar.

Please allow NJ to keep the existing laws and our privacy. No one wants calls during dinner or 8:00 am (or any other time) on Saturday or Sundays from sales people.

Sincerely,

Donna Dvorachek
